Red Lodge House,
Bristol. June 14 · 77

Dear Sir

101 May accept my warm Congratulations on your arrival in Old England & the renewal of intercourse with every old & true friend.

From what I hear, I hope that you will be well enough before you come to Bristol for us to assemble to meet you about 100 or more in the Redlodge Drawing

Rooms, formerly Dr Pritchard's. There will be very much to see here.

So please to fix as soon as your case, that I may send out invitations, & make arrangements. I may be going to London during the week after next, staying with my Brother, 56 Regents Park Road N.W.

So please let me know where to write to you, that I may see you in town; & please say whether you & your son can occupy our room.

Yours always with best wishes

Mary Carpenter

I am glad you and that lovely

& wonderful woman, Mrs Butler

Oxford, June 16, 1877.

The foregoing characteristically kind letter from my highly esteemed friend Mary Carpenter was received and read this morning. Immediately, on taking up the London Daily News, I was startled to see the announcement of her sudden death on Thursday night, of heart disease! It is probably the last epistle she ever wrote. Blessed be her memory evermore! W. L. G.
